It looks, therefore, as if it was going to be the artillery horse of the future. TACTICAL EMPLOYMENT OF ARTILLERY. The great power of the pieces which are employed to-day, the mobility that the mechanical tractor imparts to them, and the stationary character of the struggle in the field, a circumstance which assists materially in securing accuracy of aim, are the reasons that the artillery plays such an important part, especially as it can count on adequate observations of the objects chosen for attack. If it is field artillery, it is employed to cooperate with the infantry as necessity may demand. The guns of medium and heavy caliber, are used to oppose an assault when circumstances permit, to demolish earthworks, shelters and communicating trenches, as well as to destroy the woods, villages, groups of buildings, etc. that may serve as points of...
