In order to consider the preparation of reports for the elementary school which should be free from as many of these objectionable features as possible, a committee of two, consisting of the writers, was appointed. The new system which is here described was subsequently devised; and, so far as its main features are concerned, was put in operation as an experiment in September, 1918, in the Horace Mann Elementary School of Teachers College and the Scarborough School, Scarborough-on-Hudson. The first feature of the new plan is the report sent quarterly to the parents. This is printed on heavy letter paper so that it can be folded and inserted in an ordinary envelope. The form is reproduced on the following page. As is evident from an examination of the forms presented, the report as now in use has two distinct parts, the first relating to studies, and the second to habits and attitudes desirable for good citizenship. The part devoted to studies differs in two respects from the report card formerly used. In the first place, only those studies in which the child is above average and below average are specified, no particular reference being made to...
