Not illustrated. 1904 Excerpt: . . . sea or by land out of British India of skins and feathers of all birds other than domestic birds, except () feathers of ostriches and (6) skins and feathers exported bond fide as specimens illustrative of natural history. In Great Britain and on the Continent much work is being done, and in America the good work of the Audubon Societies goes steadily on. Oklahoma and Nebraska are the latest States to fall into line; and how widespread the movement is may be gathered from a glance at the Supplement to The Auk (vol. xx. , new series, No. 1, January, 1903), where maps, and c. , are given, showing--(1) the States where Audubon Societies exist, and (2) those which have adopted the American O. U. model law for the protection of birds. A full account of what has been done by the various legislatures up to the beginning of last year is also given in a handbook issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, wherein, by means of letter-press, engravings, and maps the amount of protection accorded in the various States and in Canada is shown (Legislation for the Protection of Other than Game Birds, by T. S. Palmer, Assistant Chief Biological Survey, Washington: Government Printing Office. 1902). This small book should afford many valuable hints to workers in the cause here, and might with great advantage be in the hands of Australian legislators. Illustrations of six birds are given, as well as a...
