TH E following account of Lord Or Fords Collection of Pictures, is rather intended as a Catalogue than a Description of them. The mention of Cabinets in which they have formerly been, with the addition of the measures , will contribute to ascertain their originality, and be a kind of pedigree to them. In Italy, the native foil of almost all Vertu, descriptions of great Collections are much more common and much more ample. The Princes and Noblemen there, who lovd and countenanced the Arts, were fond of letting the world know the Curiosities in their possession. There is scarce a large They have been newly measured, and are more correct than in the first: edition. 3 large Collection of Medals but is in print. Their Gems, their Statues, and Antiquities are all publishd. But the most pompous works of this sort are the des Barbarin and Giustinian, the latter of which are now extremely scarce and dear. Commerce, which carries along with it the Curiosities and Arts of Countries, as well as the Riches, daily brings us something from Italy. How many valuable Collections of Pictures are there established in England on the frequent ruins and dispersion of the finest Galleries in Rome and other Cities! Most of the famous Pallavicini Collection have been brought over; many of them are actually at Houghton. When I was in Italy, there were to be sold the Sagredo Collection at Venice, those of the Zambecari...
